Test 15

Read the passage and answer the questions.

- a. Ronald Winslow was nearly fourteen. He was at a school which trained young boys for the Navy. One afternoon he was accused of stealing a postal order from another student. (This is a kind of cheque which you can exchange for money at the post office.) The postal order wasn't for a lot of money - just the student's pocket money. Ronnie was accused of forging the boy's signature and cashing the postal order. A woman identified Ronnie as the boy who had cashed it, and a handwriting specialist also identified the signature as his.
- b. The head teacher refused to listen to Ronnie's side of the story, so the poor boy was sent home to his family. His parents believed that their son was innocent and they backed him up. They wanted a public trial to prove Ronnie's innocence, but the school did not agree to this. Mr. Winslow and Catherine, Ronnie's sister, fought the school. They hired a very expensive lawyer and spent months trying to bring Ronnie's case to court. They lost a huge amount of money and Catherine lost the man that she wanted to marry - all to clear Ronnie's name of a small and unimportant theft.
- c. Eventually the case went to court, and Ronnie had his trial. At first things didn't go well - the judge seemed to be against Ronnie and the family expected a guilty verdict from the jury. But their lawyer proved that the handwriting specialist was wrong and that the woman who had identified Ronnie was unreliable. Then, at the last moment, something happened that was totally unexpected. The trial was stopped! Ronnie was innocent. His name was clear at last! It was a success for his family against an unfair decision - but the cost to them all was enormous.
