1. Now you are going to write a story of your own , following these steps: prewriting, drafting, getting feedback, revising and sharing.

1. Select one from the 2nd and 3rd quotation given in page 53.
2. Think of a story to illustrate this quote.
3. You have to think of the characters and events that you are going to use.
4. Make it as funny as you can.
5. After writing the draft show it to the teacher and get the feedback.

2. According to your point of view,

1. What sort of relationships do we share with people?
2. Are all the relationships we share similar?
3. What are the similarities and differences do we see between relationships?
4. Are relationships necessary for our day-to-day activities?
5. In what ways do relationships are useful to us?

Activity – 3

Think of a person you are very close to.

State 5 reasons why that person is close to you.

Eg. I am very close to my father because he is very friendly.
