Adverbs

Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs. They can add to or change the meaning of a word.

A great way to spot adverbs is to look for words that end in -ly.

WHEN?	HOW?	WHERE?	EXTENT?
early	briskly	downstairs	almost first	brutally	everywhere	also
last	cheerfully	here	enough
later	expertly	in	only
never	randomly	inside	not now	sloppily	outside	quite regularly	uneasily	somewhere	rather
today	weirdly	there	so
tomorrow	wholeheartedly	underground	too
yesterday	wickedly	upstairs	very

Adverbs Tell How It Happened

Briskly: Kristein briskly walked to the library, eager to complete her homework.

Brutally: It was brutally clear he was not interested in hearing my opinion.

Cheerfully: Anil cheerfully greeted Martin each morning.

Adverbs Tell Where It Happened

Downstairs: The public library often holds meetings downstairs.

Everywhere: Jack looked everywhere for his missing keys.

Here: She will plant her garden here.

Adverbs Tell When It Happened

Early: She arrived early for the meeting.

First: When I bake, I make cookies first.

Last: When I clean, I do laundry last.

Adverbs Tell the Extent of the Action

Almost: I almost stopped at McDonald's for lunch, but I was running late.

Also: A talented singer, Jackson also enjoys playing the saxophone.

Enough: Daniel is finally tall enough to ride the roller coaster.
