I am the computer

The data and instructions you give me are called input. The devices used for this are also called input devices.

I will output the information to you. For that we use output devices.

I process the data

We can see the various tools that work in connection with computer programs. The computer programs in those devices are called advanced computer systems.

Examples;-

- (01) What is the main function of the computer?
- (02) Name 5 devices with other advanced computers you know.
- (03) Name the following devices and classify them as input devices and output devices.
